RED COMPROMISE IN BERLIN SEEN

Chepurnykh Believed Possible Top Red Boss In America

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Soviet Vice-Consul Zot I. Chepurnykh stood out today as possibly the real generalissimo of Russian power in New York—and perhaps over a much wider area as well.

Some anti-Communists are even speculating that the suave and mild-mannered official is even an agent of the dread MVD, the Russian secret police.

Two developments have lent considerable strength to these beliefs, put forward by persons familiar with Communist methods.

First, Chepurnykh has disclosed that he is returning to Russia soon—but not with Jacob Lomakin, the consul general, who has been ousted by the U. S. for his conduct in the case of the fugitive Russian school teachers.

Second, despite his role in the school teachers case and the ensuing furor over America's demand for Lomakin's recall, Chepurnykh is the only person at the consulate who still seems unperturbed and self-assured.

Two Russian reporters for the New York anti-Communist newspaper Novye Russkoye came up with the MVD theory yesterday after conversing briefly with Chepurnykh in Russian. They further asserted that Chepurnykh may be the real chief of the consulate, with Lomakin merely a "front" for him.

Chepurnykh told reporters he is definitely not staying in the United States, and added that he would return to Russia for good.

He declined to say why he is leaving, but told the newsmen: "I am in no particular hurry."

He also refused to indicate whether his departure is in any way connected with the controversy over Mikhail Samarin and his family, who fled to the FBI for protection, or Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina, who jumped from the consulate to escape what she termed "imprisonment."

When the Kosenkina case first developed, Chepurnykh told reporters he had already booked passage home, but was forced to change his plans temporarily because of the incident.

Lomakin, his wife and two children are scheduled to sail Saturday aboard the Swedish- (Continued on Page Two)

Envoys Say Stalin OKs New Talks

Vital Kremlin Parley Studied

PARIS, Aug. 24—First official diplomatic advices from Moscow today reported Premier Stalin appears willing to compromise with the West on Berlin. These advices said Stalin personally prevented a breakdown in last night's momentous Kremlin conference.

NBC reported that Stalin and the three Western envoys had agreed on a four-power meeting to be held in Berlin for discussion of currency reforms.

The broadcast said it was indicated that the Western powers have agreed to withdrawal from Berlin of their Western Mark, leaving Soviet currency as the sole exchange medium in the capital.

Diplomatic dispatches said Stalin displayed a far more conciliatory attitude than Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has shown during previous discussions.

As part of what they described as Stalin's desire to obtain the understanding of the Western Powers, these sources said the Russian leader offered new proposals bearing both on the Berlin crisis and over-all German problems.

THESE NEW offers, are being transmitted today to Washington, Paris and London.

First diplomatic dispatches received in Paris did not give any details of these new proposals. They were described merely as "conciliatory," thus indicating, however, the definite willingness of Stalin to reach a compromise.

In Washington, top State department officials today drafted new instructions for U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith on further steps to be taken at Moscow conferences on the German problem.

Secretary Marshall conferred at length during the morning with his advisers.

They closely studied a complete report on the talk which envoys of the United States, Britain and France had with Stalin.

Churchmen Launch Plan

Force Alone Can't Beat Reds, Claim

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 24—The first international assembly of the World Council of Churches embarked upon a worldwide program of Christian peace efforts today.

The drive was sparked by a warning that Communism cannot be conquered by force alone, delivered by John Foster Dulles.

The prominent American churchman told a plenary session that Communism's "world-wide ambitions" make it impossible at present to create "a universal organization of peace through law." Dulles continued: "The Soviet Communist regime is not a regime of peace and, indeed, it does not purport to be."

"IT MAY NOT—and I hope it does not—want international war. But if so, that is a matter of expediency, not principle."

The council was officially set up by 450 religious leaders representing 150 Protestant and Orthodox groups in 42 countries. Formal establishment of the council provides these churches for the first time in history with a permanent instrument for co-operative action on a worldwide scale.

In the past the council was carried on by a provisional committee headed by Dr. Marc Boegner, president of the Protestant Church Federation of France, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of Upsala, Sweden, the Archbishop of Thyateira, and Dr. John R. Mott.

The council expressed regret that neither the Roman Catholic nor the Russian Orthodox churches had sent delegates.

Scientific Gadget To Give Capital Birds 'Hotfoot'

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—This is "E" day... Electronics Experiment Day for the pigeons at the state capital.

A swarm of workmen from a Syracuse, N. Y., firm clambered over the state house planting wires to heckle the birds from roosts some of them have occupied for 20 years.

It's not a plan to "hotfoot" the billing and cooing pets from their homesteads. Company President Albert D. Gunn said:

"We just discourage them from coming back. We string wires around their favorite roosting places. The wires send out pulsations of electricity every three seconds or so."

"The electricity sets up a sort of static electric field that the pigeons can't stand. It sort of tickles them."

State house building superintendent Lee B. Palmer said it's the first time there's been a concerted effort to boost the birds in 88 years of the capital's existence.

If all goes well with today's experiment, Palmer said he might ask the legislature for money to do a complete wiring job.

Reds Easing Travel Ban

Agency Says Bars To Lower Friday

FRANKFURT, Aug. 24—The U. S.-licensed German news agency DENA reported today that the Soviets will open their occupation zone to German traffic Friday.

DENA said that the bus route from Fulda, 60 miles northwest of Frankfurt in the American zone, to Erfurt, in the Soviet zone, will operate five times weekly beginning Friday.

The agency said that only Germans with inter-zonal passes will be carried. All highway travel from the West into the Soviet zone has been banned by the Russians since June 18, ostensibly to prevent circulation of Western marks in the Russian area.

American military government officials refused to comment on the report.

In Berlin, the Soviet military government announced today that elections in Eastern Germany, originally scheduled for this Autumn, have been postponed for one year.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT followed an admission Sunday by the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity Party (SED), that anti-Soviet demonstrations have flared recently in the Russian zone. Soviet postponement of the elections in the Russian zone had long been predicted in the face of the SED's failure to win strength from the non-Communist Christian Liberal Democratic Party.

It was not known how the Soviet move will effect the coming Berlin elections, but it is expected that the Russians will attempt to have these postponed also from their scheduled October date. In the last Berlin elections, in 1946, Communists received less than 20 percent of the votes.

Operation Vittles Planes In Midair Germany Crash

WIESBADEN, Aug. 24—Two U. S. Air Force C-47 transport planes returning to Wiesbaden from Berlin without cargo collided with terrific impact near Nannau today and all four crewmen were believed killed.

So far as could be ascertained there were no passengers. The normal complement of an unladen C-47 is two men.

The crash occurred on the "Operation Vittles" run about 40 miles from Frankfurt. Wreckage of the planes littered the sugar-beet fields below.

Air Force investigators on the scene said that one craft was circling, awaiting orders to come in to the Wiesbaden base, when the second roared in, striking the first broadside.

The planes' wings, bodies and engines were scattered over a wide area. Some parts of the wreckage were buried six to 10 feet in the ground.

Jews Ready Concessions

Israel Talking With Arab States

JERUSALEM, Aug. 24—Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok disclosed today that Jews are now in "tentative contact" with Arab leaders in the effort to end Palestine warfare.

Shertok said that some Arab reactions already have been received to Israel's offer to negotiate peace with individual Arab states.

He added, that the Jews may propose certain "boundary corrections" as well as a reconsideration of the problem of the Arab minority within Israel's territory.

The disclosure came as Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion warned the council that a renewal of Arab-Jewish fighting may come at any time and that Jews must be ready for an all-out effort "to win the last and decisive battle."

BEN-GURION repeated Israel's offer to negotiate peace terms with the Arab states, but warned against "illusions." The council, representing Zionists throughout the world, also heard a report that Israel plans to receive 125,000 Jewish immigrants before the end of the year.

The report, delivered by Israeli Minister of Immigration Moshe Shapira, said that 56,000 have already entered the Holy Land since Jan. 1.

Of these, he said, 34,000 arrived after immigration restrictions were lifted with the ending of the British mandate May 15.

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, head of the American delegation to the council, hailed the appointment of James G. MacDonald as head of the U. S. mission to Israel as "a definite gesture of good will."

Representing American Zionists at the conference in addition to Rabbi Silver are Dr. Emmanuel Neumann and Mrs. Rose Halprin of New York, Judge Elihu Stone of Boston, and Judge Morris Rothenberg of New York.

Fugitive Fears Florida Return

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—A 21-year-old fugitive from a Florida prison road gang will be granted an extradition hearing in the governor's office Sept. 15.

Fred M. Fox, the twice-wounded World War II veteran who was serving 10 years for breaking and entry, and armed robbery following the holdup of a tourist camp, is being held in Cleveland on a fugitive from justice warrant.

Fox declared that "I'd rather die than go back" to the Florida road gang.

New Torrid Heat Wave Sweeping Over All Ohio

Ohio was in the grip of the season's most torrid heat wave as the mercury pushed beyond the 90-degree mark in most sections Tuesday.

Forecasters said Ohioans can expect two more days of the sweltering weather. They added that "no rain is in sight."

The heat wave extended over the eastern two-thirds of the country with its center in the plain states, especially Iowa and Wisconsin, where temperatures climbed over 100 at many points.

Cincinnati was Ohio's hot spot Monday with a sizzling 96. Chesapeake, Dayton and Zanesville recorded 94s while Circleville baked under 93 degrees temperature.

Observers pointed out that a high mark of 94, the highest for any Aug. 24 in Cleveland's weather bureau history, may be broken before the day is over. The mark was set last year.

They added that "never have we had 99 degrees or higher this late in the year." Cleveland's high of 94 set June 23 and tied on July 4 also may be topped Tuesday.

The weather bureau's five-day outlook follows: "Temperatures will average six to eight degrees above normal. Quite warm during the first part, becoming cooler last part of period. Showers possible by Friday. Total rainfall about 1/2 inch."

Ex-Red's Talk 'Very Helpful' To Spy Probers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—Louis Budenz, former editor of The Communist Daily Worker, testified in secret for 40 minutes today in the House spy investigation.

Rep. Nixon, (R) Calif., told reporters that Budenz testified on the controversy between Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers.

The congressman said that the ex-Communist "gave information that was very helpful" to the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Budenz is expected to be on hand tomorrow when Hiss and Chambers meet face-to-face in a public hearing for the first time. But Nixon declined to say whether Budenz would be called upon to testify at tomorrow's session.

Chambers, admitted ex-Communist, has accused Hiss, former State department official, of once being a member of a Communist "underground" in the United States. Hiss has denied the charges.

Airmen To Write Defense Ticket

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—The United States Air Force appears today to have won its battle for top position in the nation's preparedness program.

The victory in all probability was won at the extremely important weekend conference of the joint chiefs of staff at Newport, R. I.

Defense Secretary Forrestal saw fit to issue a statement on the conference in which he declared:

"It was agreed that the service having the primary function must determine the requirements for the performance of that function."

In military language, military observers agree, this means:

The Air Force is responsible for strategic air warfare — the warfare that blasts the source of an enemy's military strength.

Air Death Odds: 254,000 To 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—The odds on loss of life while traveling on the nation's airlines are now about 254 thousand to one.

In this year's first quarter comparative safety record, the Civil Aeronautics Board reported today that U. S. air carriers hauled two million 798 thousand passengers during scheduled operations with only 11 deaths recorded.

Commissioners OK $10,000 Levy For Improvements At Fairgrounds

Petition for renewal of a two-mill tax levy for one year was approved Monday by the Pickaway County commissioners and was filed with the board of election to cover a $10,000 improvement program at the fairgrounds.

Request that the levy be placed on the November ballot came after the Pickaway County Agriculture Society outlined a plan for erection of new buildings, payment of rent and other expenses.

The commissioners also are considering the possibility of a bond issue needed for reconstruction and repair of 11 bridges damaged or washed away in June in Walnut Township during a flash flood.

Commissioner John Keller said the board had approved a $110,000 damage estimate submitted by County Engineer Henry T. McCrady last week. An earlier estimate was turned down as too low, Keller said.

WAA Boss Faces Double Probe

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—War Assets Administrator Jess Larson will defend disposal of a $28 million Cleveland pig iron plant to the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. tomorrow.

Larson faces a double-barreled congressional inquiry on the deal, with committees of both the House and Senate opening hearings tomorrow morning.

A spokesman for the WAA chief said today that Larson will declare at the Senate small business hearing, where he is scheduled to be lead-off witness, that the transfer of the plant to the auto company was in the best interest of the government and the national economy.

Now on file are petitions from Harrison Township—two mill; Monroe Township—two mills; Perry Township—three mills; Wayne Township—three mills; New Holland—five mills; Ashville—two mills.

The single local option petition was filed by Tarlton corporation covering the sale of beer by holders of C and D permits by the sale of intoxicating liquors.

Envoys Say Stalin OKs New Talks

told newsmen a thorough report had been received from Smith. However, he made clear that a complete blackout on the Moscow meetings will be maintained for the present.

He confirmed that the talks will continue for at least one more meeting and added that no date has been set for this conference.

Presumably, it will be held with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov to put into specific terms whatever accord may have been reached with Stalin on future procedures.

THE FACT that Moscow reported further talks were anticipated following last night's Kremlin meeting gave a ray of hope to an otherwise gloomy situation.

Prior to yesterday's meeting it had been anticipated that this conference would be the last. It was expected to spell a new era of accord between the Western Powers and the Soviet Union, or a definite breach.

This possibility was emphasized by the fact that State department information services remained on duty far into the night in the belief that a break in the tortuous negotiations might come.

Until last night, it was generally felt that the situation was one of touch and go. Official statements have been to the effect that there was no cause for optimism or pessimism.

It was understood that the principal factor in the negotiations at present involves a settlement of the conflicting currencies in Berlin and taxation for that area.

These the United States has been ready to resolve from the start. Efforts to do so on the Berlin level, however, have failed. While the Moscow talks have continued over the past several weeks the situation in the German capital has constantly deteriorated.

God is my strength and power, and he maketh my way perfect. 2 Sam. 22:33.

Earl J. Hall of 587 East Spring street, Columbus, is reported recovering from an attack of poisoning he suffered recently in his home. Hall is a former Circleville resident.

The Moose Lodge will sponsor a games party every Wednesday starting at 8 p. m. The public is invited.

Lawrence W. Ater and Warren E. Ater have been appointed in Pickaway County probate court as co-administrators of the Elmer E. Ater estate.

The Kingston Community MYF will sponsor a scrap, metal and paper drive in Pickaway township, August 25th and 26th.

Milton E. Morris of Dayton was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Morris of Circleville.

Have a Spencer corset designed especially for you—Mrs. Brashear here every Thursday, 138 Watt St. Phone 485X.

Frank J. Lausche, Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, will speak Wednesday evening in Turlington. All Pickaway County Democratic candidates will have seats of honor on the speaker's platform.

Dr. V. D. Kerns will be out of his office August 16-28 inclusive, attending post graduate school at Michael Rees Hospital, Chicago.

David Heft, 26, of Saginaw, Mich., pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs Monday when he appeared before Magistrate Oscar Root for fishing in the canal waters without a license. Heft was arrested by Clarence Francis, state game protector.

Women Face Hearing Today

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Aug. 24—Arraignment of a 72-year-old grandmother and her daughter on charges of the poison murder of two men was scheduled here today.

Both women, Mrs. Kate Goad and Mrs. Katherine Lee, 34-year-old wife of Allie Lee, 42, one of the victims, have denied any connection with the deaths. The other victim was James A. Croslin, 52, a neighbor.

Analysis of the contents of Croslin's stomach was expected to be completed today by the University of Kentucky laboratory. A laboratory report showed Lee died of strychnine poisoning.

Both men died about three hours after they had eaten dinner Aug. 14 at the Lee home.

Cost Of Peace: $33.5 Million

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 24—The cost of nursing peace during 1949 was estimated at almost $33.5 million today.

This was the figure set by the United Nations to continue functioning next year.

Just what amount of this total each nation will have to pay will be figured out when the General Assembly meets in Paris next month.

Last year, the United States share of the budget was 39.89 percent of the total bill. The U. S. has asked the assembly to cut the assessments, which might indicate a desire to get the UN bill reduced to 25 percent.

Meanwhile, tension in the city eased after Soviet officials released three Americans, a British pilot, and five West-sector German policemen from Russian custody.

The provost marshal's office said that U. S. military police have been withdrawn from the boundary between the American and Russian sectors, apparently in the effort to avert any incidents.

Russian raids across the line, ostensibly to stop black-marketing, resulted in a series of kidnappings which raised tension in the last few days.

The Soviet-military government organ Taegliche Rundschau charged today that the West is protecting black marketers and speculators while they themselves are pressing the "looting" of Berlin with the connivance of the municipal government.

Wallace Plans Campaigning In Southern States

CINCINNATI, Aug. 24—Henry A. Wallace announced today that he will carry his civil rights fight to the South "very shortly."

The Progressive Party candidate for President, in a speech before the Negro Elks convention here, accused both major parties of aiding and abetting anti-Negro discrimination.

Wallace charged the Republican and Democratic parties with "passing a death sentence against 15 million Americans."

He said that "repression, scarcity and war" constitute the "letting and spirit" of both major parties.

The former vice-president contended that both major party candidates (Truman and Dewey) "are only more sophisticated versions of their more articulate brother, the candidate of the Dixiecrat party, Gov. Thurmond."

Wallace accused President Truman of having "presided over the gradual liquidation of civil rights for the citizens of the United States—145 million of them."

"Mr. Dewey admits that he has the names of 1,000 members of the Ku Klux Klan in New York state, but he refuses to put the light of publicity on them."

Bankruptcy File Said Increasing

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24—Bankruptcy filings are on the increase and probably will total more than 20,000 this year.

The Commercial League of America's Committee on Bankruptcy reported yesterday at the group's 54th annual convention in Cleveland that this year's figure will far exceed the 1947 total of 13,170.

The report stated: "The new adventures in retail, wholesale and manufacturing business have acquired plants and equipment at high prices, large inventories which are not moving."

ment of a multi-million dollar joint radar setup between the U. S. and Canada.

Meanwhile, other military authorities revealed that a plan for increasing the number of units in the Air National Guard was drawn up recently but not put into effect "because it needed polishing up."

The National Guard fits into the aircraft warning picture by training radar units, as well as ground and air crews. Others involved in bolstering the system are the Army, Navy and Coast Guard.

Police Checking Tale Man Plans Own Murder

EMPORIA, Kan., Aug. 24—A bizarre charge that a 60-year-old loan company operator offered $1,000 in payment for his own murder was under investigation today.

The Kansas attorney general's office said it was investigating all circumstances surrounding the gunshot death of Herbert J. Kindred, president of the City Finance Co. of Emporia.

Kindred was found shot to death last week near Florence, Kan.

The story under investigation was that Kindred knew his loan institution was in precarious financial condition and wanted to provide for his family with a $60,000 insurance policy.

William E. Gayer, 29-year-old Emporia truck driver, is held in connection with Kindred's death. Gayer has been charged with murder, but vigorously denies any knowledge of how Kindred met death.

Gayer told officers of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation that Kindred had offered him $1,000 if he would kill Kindred. Gayer said he refused the offer.

The finance company's incorporators yesterday petitioned Judge Jay Sullivan to appoint a receiver for the firm because, they said, the company "is in danger of insolvency."

One company official told Judge Sullivan that losses to creditors may run between $500,000 and $750,000. A hearing on the receivership application was set for Thursday.

Saltcreek Falls Faculty Roster; To Open Sept. 7

Saltcreek Township school has completed its teacher roster for the coming year and is ready to throw open its doors to students Sept. 7.

The opening day is to be preceded by a teachers' meeting in the Commercial room of the school at 8 a. m. Rest of the day will be devoted to re-habilitating the students to school routine after their summer vacation.

Teaching staff for the year includes Harold Strous, superintendent and teacher of science; Miss Helen Houseberg, English and music; Herbert Brown, science and manual arts; Mrs. Alice Roll, social science and commercial studies; Miss Juanita Bartram, English and home economics.

Leslie Dearth, junior high school and coach; Mrs. Margaret Goode, fifth grade; Miss Margaret Chilcote, third and fourth grades; Miss Marcella Reed, second grade; and Mrs. Florence Buchert, first grade.

THE CAFETERIA is to be well staffed this year, with Mrs. Laura Rector employed as head cook, with Miss Thelma Minor and Mrs. Ethel Jones as her assistants.

Albert Crabtree is to resume his janitorial duties for the school again this year.

Four school bus drivers have been employed for the coming year, although the fifth of the school's drivers is yet to be hired.

Those hired are Lee Bochert, who will drive route 1; Merrill Imier, route 3; Francis Fraundfelter, route 4; and Floyd Reid, route 5. Driver for Route 2 still is needed.

The school is to be opened at 9 a. m. Sept. 7 and is to be dismissed at 3 p. m.

The cafeteria will open on the same day as the school, and each student eating there will pay only 20 cents per meal.

Amvets Schedule Formal Election

Circleville Amvets, most newly formed service organization in the city, is to hold an election of officers in Hanley's Grill at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

The new organization has applied for charter, and now has a roster of about 20 members. All club meetings are to be held in the uptown restaurant until plans are completed to obtain a home.

Temporary officers, appointed at the last meeting of the World War II veterans group, are Jim Price, president; James Callihan, secretary of finance; and Ralph Schumm, adjutant.

3 Of 8 Felons Grabbed Quickly

EAST POINT, Ga., Aug. 24—Three of eight convicts who overpowered their guards at a prison camp here today were recaptured a short time later.

One of the alleged ringleaders, Earl Harris, was taken into custody almost immediately. He was recaptured when he failed to leap aboard a prison truck, stolen by the convicts, before it sped away.

Two others were picked up walking along Atlanta streets less than three hours after making their bid for freedom.

Boater Hurt In Dam Leap

CINCINNATI, Aug. 24—Walter Costigan of Cincinnati has a slight idea of what it's like to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Late yesterday he ran an 18-foot, 2,700 motor boat over the Fernbank dam near here at about 30 miles an hour. The craft sank in 40 feet of water. Today, Costigan sported a cut on his chin and some back injuries as the result.

Circleville High School Band Due For Practices

Circleville high school band members are to meet for their first fall practice at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at the high school.

Truman Eberly, who is to be his first year as music director at the school, said Tuesday he expects over 60 instrumentalists to attend the first session, along with eight baton-twirlers.

According to Eberly, he expects to devote much time this year to drills and marches, preparing for the coming fall and football season. The band thus will be polished into both a marching and concert organization.

The new instructor pointed out the band would participate in all the events it had entered in the past, including fairs, football games, public concerts, etc., and that new music had been ordered.

The new music is to consist of new marches, novelties and popular tunes. The new selections are to be played as the band concentrates on a series of military drills and idea formations for the first football game, scheduled Sept. 17.

Frazer Granted Leave Absence

Harvey Frazer, Pickaway County Boy Scout Field executive here last year, has been granted a leave of absence by local officials to enter Ohio State university this fall. The leave is to be effective as of Sept. 1.

The post of Field executive for the county has been filled temporarily by G. S. Bolin, who had held the position previously during 1945 and '46.

DEATHS and Funerals

MRS. IRVIN ALSAUGH Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Van Cleve funeral home, Amanda, for Mrs. Etta H. Alspaugh, 74, of Amanda, who died Monday afternoon in the home of a son, Dr. Donald J. Alspaugh of Columbus.

Surviving are her husband, Irvin E. Alspaugh of Amanda; two other sons, Ralph B. Alspaugh of Cincinnati, and Harold P. of Pittsburgh; a sister, Mrs. William Sitterly of Canal Winchester; a brother, Charles Haas of Circleville and three grandchildren.

The Rev. L. A. Donnelly will officiate and burial will be made in Amanda cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 5:30 p. m. Tuesday.

$75,081 Fund Being Released County Schools

Distribution of $75,081.36 from the third quarterly settlement from the state foundation program got underway Tuesday in the office of George McDowell, superintendent of Pickaway County schools.

The funds are made available under the amended senate bill No. 48 setting up the foundation program law. Source of revenue to provide the money comes from the state sales tax.

McDowell said the funds are earmarked proportionately with 75 percent set aside for teachers salaries and 25 percent for other school expenses. Distribution of the settlement will be made as follows:

Ashville—$9,009.11; Darby Township—$6,337.28; Deer Creek Township—$6,075.90; Harrison Township—$1,954.62; Jackson Township—$4,637.88; Madison Township—$1,333.07; Monroe Township—$6,008.24; Muhlenberg Township—$1,469.43.

told newsmen a thorough report had been received from Smith. However, he made clear that a complete blackout on the Moscow meetings will be maintained for the present.

He confirmed that the talks will continue for at least one more meeting and added that no date has been set for this conference.

Presumably, it will be held with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov to put into specific terms whatever accord may have been reached with Stalin on future procedures.

THE FACT that Moscow reported further talks were anticipated following last night's Kremlin meeting gave a ray of hope to an otherwise gloomy situation.

Prior to yesterday's meeting it had been anticipated that this conference would be the last. It was expected to spell a new era of accord between the Western Powers and the Soviet Union, or a definite breach.

This possibility was emphasized by the fact that State department information services remained on duty far into the night in the belief that a break in the tortuous negotiations might come.

Until last night, it was generally felt that the situation was one of touch and go. Official statements have been to the effect that there was no cause for optimism or pessimism.

It was understood that the principal factor in the negotiations at present involves a settlement of the conflicting currencies in Berlin and taxation for that area.

These the United States has been ready to resolve from the start. Efforts to do so on the Berlin level, however, have failed. While the Moscow talks have continued over the past several weeks the situation in the German capital has constantly deteriorated.

LEGAL NOTICE
Sealed bids will be received by the City of Circleville, Ohio, until twelve o'clock noon on Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1948, for furnishing the necessary labor and materials for the construction of additions to the waterworks system of the City, all as set forth in plans and specifications thereon now on file in the office of the Utilities Manager and in the office of the engineering engineers hereinafter named. At the time herein before mentioned and at the City Hall said bids will be publicly opened and read.

Each bid must contain the full name of every person or company interested in the same and be accompanied by a bond with an approved surety company in the sum of 10 per cent of the amount of the bid or a certified check on some solvent bank, drawn and made payable to the City of Circleville, Ohio, as a guaranty that if the bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and its performance properly secured. Should any bid be received such bond or check will be returned to the bidder and should any bid be accepted, the bond or check will be returned upon the proper execution and securing of the contract.

The successful bidder will be required to execute the contract within 10 days after the award of the work to him, and shall furnish bond to the satisfaction of the City for the faithful performance of said contract in the sum of 100 per cent of the total amount of his bid. In case of failure to execute the contract as stated or to furnish bond, the bidder will be considered to have abandoned the contract and the bond or check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City, not as penalty but as liquidated damages.

This work is not to be financed either wholly or in part by Federal funds. The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids, or to increase or decrease or omit any item or items and to award to the lowest and best bidder. By order of the Council of the City of Circleville, State of Ohio.

The opening day is to be preceded by a teachers' meeting in the Commercial room of the school at 8 a. m. Rest of the day will be devoted to re-habilitating the students to school routine after their summer vacation.

Teaching staff for the year includes Harold Strous, superintendent and teacher of science; Miss Helen Houserberg, English and music; Herbert B. Brown, science and manual arts; Mrs. Alice Roll, social science and commercial studies; Miss Juanita Bartram, English and home economics.

Leslie Dearth, junior high school and coach; Mrs. Margaret Goode, fifth grade; Miss Margaret Chilcote, third and fourth grades; Miss Marcella Reed, second grade; and Mrs. Florence Bochart, first grade.

THE CAFETERIA is to be well staffed this year, with Mrs. Laura Rector employed as head cook, with Miss Thelma Minor and Mrs. Ethel Jones as her assistants.

Albert Crabtree is to resume his janitorial duties for the school again this year.

Four school bus drivers have been employed for the coming year, although the fifth of the school's drivers is yet to be hired.

Those hired are Lee Bochart, who will drive route 1; Merrill Imier, route 3; Francis Fraunfelder, route 4; and Floyd Reid, route 5. Driver for Route 2 still is needed.

The school is to be opened at 9 a. m. Sept. 7 and is to be dismissed at 3 p. m.

The cafeteria will open on the same day as the school, and each student eating there will pay only 20 cents per meal.

Amvets Schedule Formal Election

Circleville Amvets, most newly formed service organization in the city, is to hold an election of officers in Hanley's Grill at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

The new organization has applied for charter, and now has a roster of about 20 members. All club meetings are to be held in the uptown restaurant until plans are completed to obtain a home.

Temporary officers, appointed at the last meeting of the World War II veterans group, are Jim Price, president; James Callahan, secretary of finance; and Ralph Schumm, adjutant.

3 Of 8 Felons Grabbed Quickly

EAST POINT, Ga., Aug. 24—Three of eight convicts who overpowered their guards at a prison camp here today were recaptured a short time later.

One of the alleged ringleaders, Earl Harris, was taken into custody almost immediately. He was recaptured when he failed to leap aboard a prison truck, stolen by the convicts, before it sped away.

Two others were picked up walking along Atlanta streets, less than three hours after making their bid for freedom.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 24—Walter Costigan of Cincinnati has a slight idea of what it's like to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Late yesterday he ran an 18-foot, $2,700 motor boat over the Fernbank dam near here at about 30 miles an hour. The successful accomplishment of its strategic mission.

That being so, the Air Force, not the Navy, can dictate the use of such weapons as the Navy's new 65,000-ton aircraft carrier.

The present critical situation in Berlin pointed up the Air Force arguments made at Newport. Forrestal said the Berlin crisis was fully discussed.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff, who returned to the United States from Germany only a few hours before the conference began, gave an up-to-the-minute report on American air power in Europe.

The defense secretary's carefully worded statement contained strong implication that the air general got what he wanted—an absolute "spelling out" of Air Force authority.

The civilian heads of all the armed services—the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force—were present at the Newport conference.

Some observers believe they were on hand to override, if necessary, any objections on the part of Army or Navy officers to a big boost in Air Force "authority."

Circleville High School Band Due For Practices

Circleville high school band members are to meet for their first fall practice at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at the high school.

Truman Eberly, who is to begin his first year as music director at the school, said Tuesday he expects over 60 instrumentalists to attend the first session, along with eight baton-twirlers.

According to Eberly, he expects to devote much time this year to drills and marches, preparing for the coming fall and football season. The band thus will be polished into both a marching and concert organization.

The new instructor pointed out the band would participate in all the events it had entered in the past, including fairs, football games, public concerts, etc., and that new music had been ordered.

The new music is to consist of new marches, novelties and popular tunes. The new selections are to be played as the band concentrates on a series of military drills and idea formations for the first football game, scheduled Sept. 17.

NEW RECRUITS are being sought for the band, with special concentration on flute, baritone, bass, clarinet and tenor saxophone.

New uniforms have been ordered for the director, drum major and majorettes, and some few replacements are being secured for the old uniforms of the band members. Eberly said he hoped to have the band fully regaled in the new dress for the first football game.

He expressed the hope that, at some future date, oboes, bassoons, baritone-saxophones, French horns and sousaphones might be purchased to make the band a better concert organization.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Van Cleve funeral home, Amanda, for Mrs. Etta H. Alspaugh, 74, of Amanda, who died Monday afternoon in the home of a son, Dr. Donald J. Alspaugh of Columbus.

Surviving are her husband, Irvin E. Alspaugh of Amanda; two other sons, Ralph B. Alspaugh of Cincinnati, and Harold P., of Pittsburgh; a sister, Mrs. William Sitterly of Canal Winchester; a brother, Charles Haas of Circleville and three grandchildren.

The Rev. L. A. Donnelly will officiate and burial will be made in Amanda cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 5:30 p. m. Tuesday.

$75,081 Fund Being Released County Schools

Distribution of $75,081.36 from the third quarterly settlement from the state foundation program got underway Tuesday in the office of George McDowell, superintendent of Pickaway County schools.

The funds are made available under the amended senate bill No. 48 setting up the foundation program law. Source of revenue to provide the money comes from the state sales tax.

McDowell said the funds are earmarked proportionately with 75 percent set aside for teachers salaries and 25 percent for other school expenses. Distribution of the settlement will be made as follows:

Ashville—$9,009.11; Darby Township—$6,337.25; Deer Creek Township—$6,075.90; Harrison Township—$1,954.62; Jackson Township—$4,637.88; Madison Township—$1,333.07; Monroe Township—$6,008.24; Muhlenberg Township—$1,469.43.

New Holland—$5,280.90; Perry Township—$4,637.34; Pickaway Township—$3,081.94; Saltcreek Township—$6,572.04; Scioto Township—$8,142.27; Walnut Township—$7,926.89; Washington Township—$3,475.59; and Wayne Township—$2,138.90.

Axis Sally In Yank Jail Awaiting Treason Trial

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—Perhaps already they have forgotten, but once half a million GIs wondered.

Down in the old, beat-up District of Columbia jail which has housed mental cases and murderers, law makers and lawbreakers in its time, a lonely, gray-haired woman sits. If she is terrified at what lies before her, she still remains too much of an actress to show it.

For at 49, Mildred Elizabeth Sisk, alias Mildred Elizabeth Gillars, alias (according to federal charges) "Axis Sally," unquestionably knows that her toughest audience still remains to be faced—a treason trial jury.

From Kasserine to Kassel, the boys used to sit around speculating what should be done with "Axis Sally" after the war was over—if she ever were caught. At the time, they were skeptical however. Still, some of them had some intriguing suggestions on the subject.

JUST BEFORE going to jail, Miss Sisk-Gillars talked to reporters, but she didn't have much to say. However, she told them she was sorry about that because, she insisted, she used to be a reporter herself. She didn't elucidate on the subject at the time, but around Washington you hear that remark—legitimately, too—so often that no one paid it much attention.

Her voice was pleasant and well-modulated, but at least one person present who had heard "Axis Sally" for months said he wouldn't hazard a guess as to whether it was the same voice.

Even the boys who nightly damned that voice of "Axis Sally" admitted that it was a pleasant one. Sometimes they said it with curses. Sometimes they said it dead-toned. Sometimes they said it dreamily. It had been a long time since they had seen a woman then.

If Miss Sisk-Gillars yet realized that she faced a possible death penalty, she didn't show it. She listened attentively to the charges which she had been brought home from Berlin to face, but said that she had nothing to say—other than that she "wouldn't agree with them."

Whether she actually made those Berlin radio broadcasts designed to damage Allied troop morale was something she obviously was not going to answer at the time. But, in refusing to answer, she never lost her aplomb.

"Axis Sally" seldom lost her aplomb, even during the tougher days of the Berlin bombing, which she always laughed off, seemingly lightheartedly. In fact, there came a time when some of the boys began to doubt that we really were plastering the Nazi capital as our communiques said. Bare-faced lies—as the little bemoustached paperhanger once said—became impressive, if repeated often enough.

ASKED if she had any relatives in America, Miss Sisk-Gillars replied "no." However, an assistant attorney-general who was there said that she had a half-sister in Ohio. The prisoner, who had just been taken off the plush plane from Berlin, did not seem particularly interested in the information.

"When did she get here?" she asked idly, but that was all.

"Axis Sally" used to be interested in families—especially those of the GIs who had been overseas a couple of years or so. Her nightly "newscasts" always contained lots of stories about servicemen divorcing the wives on adultery charges and that sort of thing. Also, she told of wild parties and seduction cases back home. To married infantrymen in the foxholes, she always dedicated the record: "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now?" very effective.

However, a few days in the district jail probably will leave Miss Sisk-Gillars more interested in possible relatives who might rally around. It's a pretty dismal place, that jail—dark, noisy and smelly. For that matter, all jails usually are.

It was dark along the line, too, all the way from Fald Pass to Huertgen Forest. Yes, and it was noisy. And when the dead lie untended for days out in front of your foxholes, and the wind is wrong, it becomes smelly, too.

When last seen, Miss Sisk-Gillars was wearing a black slack suit, white blouse and pumps, but she looked far from glamorous—in case anybody's interested.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—Thirty carloads of wheat given by farmers throughout Ohio to the needy of war-ravaged nations will be dedicated Thursday at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

The wheat is part of a 50-carload food train worth $250,000, assembled from about 50 Ohio counties by the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

CROP spokesmen said a second train, scheduled for shipment in the Fall, will concentrate on milk products. The trains go to Philadelphia for shipment overseas.

Burglars Take Small Arsenal In Downtown Store

Loss of approximately $200 worth of firearms, ammunition, knives and watches was reported stolen Monday night when burglars broke in the Western Auto Associate Store on West Main street.

Store Manager John Magill discovered the loss about 7:30 a. m. Tuesday when he opened the store for business. Officer Elmer Merriman was called in for investigation of the thefts.

Last week burglars attempted to crash through the rear door of the store but apparently were frightened away before making good their try.

A tentative list of missing goods supplied by Magill to police included a "small arsenal"—one .22 calibre revolver, two rifles, a carton of ammunition, two hunting knives and two wrist watches.

Entrance to the store was made by smashing a latch on the rear service door and by prying open an inner door. Police said either a crow bar or tire tool was used to jimmy the locks.

go with an Army job in Japan!

How times have changed.

Three years ago, when our first victorious combat men left Japan, much of it was a shambles. The Japanese people were so dazed by defeat they didn't know which way to turn. The life of an Army man often had its discomforts.

But look at him today! He's helped to start the rebuilding of Japan, to restore roads and railways, to inspire a tired and hungry people with the hope of Democracy. Under his guiding hand, courts of justice, woman suffrage and freedom of worship have been brought about. In Japan there is only one soldier for every 400 Japanese—the smallest per capita occupation army in the world.

The pay of a Private is 50% higher than three years ago, then another 20% higher overseas. And almost every cent can be banked. None of it goes for food, housing, medical or dental care, clothing, retirement annuity, or the opportunity to continue his education. The Army furnishes him equipment for organized sports. While on leave, he can ski in winter or visit summer resorts at a fraction of what these activities would cost him in the United States.

An Army career in Japan is full of advantages such as these. Compare it with any job across the board—you'll find it hard to beat! Ask at your nearest Army and Air Force Recruiting Station for full details.

How times have changed.

Three years ago, when our first victorious combat men left Japan, much of it was a shambles. The Japanese people were so dazed by defeat they didn't know which way to turn. The life of an Army man often had its discomforts.

But look at him today! He's helped to start the rebuilding of Japan, to restore roads and railways, to inspire a tired and hungry people with the hope of Democracy. Under his guiding hand, courts of justice, woman suffrage and freedom of worship have been brought about. In Japan there is only one soldier for every 400 Japanese—the smallest per capita occupation army in the world.

The pay of a Private is 50% higher than three years ago, then another 20% higher overseas. And almost every cent can be banked. None of it goes for food, housing, medical or dental care, clothing, retirement annuity, or the opportunity to continue his education. The Army furnishes him equipment for organized sports. While on leave, he can ski in winter or visit summer resorts at a fraction of what these activities would cost him in the United States.

An Army career in Japan is full of advantages such as these. Compare it with any job across the board—you'll find it hard to beat! Ask at your nearest Army and Air Force Recruiting Station for full details.

NEW MONEY IN CHINA

THE new Chinese currency has been accepted with great pleasure at being rid of the interminable rows of ciphers needed for transactions in the old currency, but with sober misgivings as to its stability.

The government announced that 40 per cent of the value of the new money would be backed by gold or other hard specie, and the balance by government property guarantees. The question immediately was raised, and with good reason, whether the Chinese government, after more than a decade of war and wholly unsound currency policies, actually has enough gold or other specie to back its currency. After the currency experience just gone through, it is understandable also that there is some doubt of the validity of government guarantees.

If the government of China is able to support the new issue adequately, its troubles will not yet be over. The amount of the issue, two billion dollars, is extremely small for the currency needs of a country of such extent and population. With the currency securely established, would the government be able to resist the temptation at a later time to increase the amount without increasing the backing?

The other nations will be earnestly hoping for success of this venture.

UNGLAMOROUS TIBET

ONE by one, the glamorous countries of the Far East are losing their romance. The latest is Tibet. A delegation of Tibetan business men, wearing American summer suits, have come to the United States to increase trade between their country and ours. What could be more prosaic than this? What is more contrary to the traditional view of a mysterious land from which foreigners were barred, and where a Grand Lama ruled in a city which no outsider had ever seen?

However, the delegation did not do much to dispel the mystery. To most of the questions asked about wonders alleged to be seen in Tibet, their chairman replied, "I have no information." And he could not even tell how to get to Shangri-La. But evidently the old-time barriers are falling, and Tibet is on its way to becoming just another country.

At Yalta, the Russians laid their plans on the table; it was clear that the Russians had plans for a Marxist conquest of the world, for an imperialist Soviet development in Europe and Asia. At Yalta, Mr. Roosevelt accepted the Russian program—as is now but was not then known.

At Potsdam, President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes faced the same sure program of Bolshevik imperialism. They were not only unfamiliar with the program but had had no experience with Marxist dialectics. They had looked forward to a deal among reasonable men—some such compromise as that which had brought Mr. Truman to the White House. Instead they found a positive, recalcitrant, irreconcilable attitude. This they have faced in action since Potsdam.

What Mr. Truman is incapable of understanding is the "unreasonableness" of the Russians. But are they "unreasonable"? Actually they are pursuing the course which brought them into existence in 1907; which gave them victory in Russia in 1917; and which they believe must inevitably give them the world. That course is the Marxian proletarian revolution, led by an intellectual elite, which is the next stage in the struggle for existence. Behind their thinking is a complex of ideas—all materialistic, basically biologic and stressing the role of man in the natural world as a thing, not as a creature possessing inalienable rights because he is human. This philosophy is at variance with every Christian ideal and is therefore in conflict with what we know as Western civilization.

Were this conflict merely over territory or economic gains or shifts in population, it would be possible to make a "reasonable" deal, but the Marxist is fighting for the conquest of the world by what he believes to be indubitable and irrefutable truth. He can make no compromises without destroying what he accepts as ideals of life.

The vast misunderstanding of this position is apparent in the current espionage trials where men are asked to swear, on a Christian Bible, a Christian oath to a Christian God—all of which to a Communist is utter nonsense and superstition.

When our diplomats and statesmen deal with Soviet Russia, they face two parties to the discussion: one, the Russian state, that makes treaties and agreements, sends ambassadors and consuls, fights wars by a General Staff and field officers; the other, a vast, international movement made up of citizens of many countries, obedient to a central party discipline and controlled mentally and physically by a philosophy of life that, in its current phase, arouses emotions so powerful that they narcotize and overwhelm the votary. Love of family, love of country, love of God, self-defense, honor, truth, loyalty, self-respect—all disappear before the complete absorption in the cause. It is a total and absolute reduction of self to the discipline of the party.

This is the sort of enemy we face and have actually faced since 1917. How intelligent men could mistake this enemy is difficult to understand.

DIET AND HEALTH

Rich Foods, Hard Drinking, Can't Be Blamed for Gout

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

VICTIMS of gout, as depicted in novels, are always "high-livers" and hard drinkers, with a particular fondness for port wine. If authors troubled to seek medical advice they would find that this disease is by no means limited to people of this type.

In other words, the cause of gout is not to be found in rich food and drink, but rather in the inability of the body to use certain food parts known as purines. The disease is largely confined to men and, though it can occur at any age, it usually begins during the fourth decade of life with dramatic suddenness.

Exercising Pain

Without warning, its victim is seized with an excruciating pain in the joint of the large toe. Other joints may be involved, but this is the usual site of the torture. The skin around the inflamed and throbbing joint soon becomes a dusky red, while fever and rapid heart beat give evidence that the entire body is affected.

Even if untreated, the attack usually clears up for the time being in from three to seven days. The skin over the involved joint may peel.

Persons with an attack of gout respond quickly to a drug known as colchicine. In fact, if there is some question about the diagnosis and the symptoms clear up with the administration of this drug, it means, in practically all cases, that the trouble is due to gout.

After Attack

After an attack clears up, the patient has no reaction from the condition except, perhaps, an increase of the amount of uric acid in the blood.

Attacks usually occur once a year. However, as they recur, there is a tendency for the attacks to last longer and the interval between the attacks to become shorter.

About ten to twenty years after the first attack of gout, a chronic condition may develop, due to damage to the joint. Deposits of what are known as urates occur along tendons which connect the muscles to the bones, and around the joints. The patient is apt to have continued symptoms.

In most instances, attacks of gout are not brought on by eating or drinking excessively. However, injuries, excessive exercise, and infection do seem to bring on the attacks.

Certain drugs, such as liver extracts, mercurials and ergotamine tartrate also seem to provoke gouty attacks.

In making a diagnosis of the condition, the amount of uric acid in the blood should be determined, since in gout the quantity of uric acid in the blood is greater than normal.

In Early Stages

X-ray examination is not of great value in diagnosing the condition in the early stages. When the disorder becomes chronic, however, X-ray examination is quite helpful in the diagnosis.

Treatment consists of the use of colchicine, as I have mentioned, and the pain-relieving preparations if they are necessary. The elimination of foods rich in purines, such as liver, kidney, pancreas, anchovies, sardines, and brains, is important. The patient should drink plenty of fluids. Exercise of the involved joints is of value. Aspirin and baking soda taken three days of each week are also helpful in preventing attacks.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

ROWLEY went on talking to Poirot.

"David Hunter (that's Rosaleen Clode's brother) had called to see him the evening after he arrived. His story to the police is that he'd had a letter from the chap saying he had been a friend of Robert Underhay's and was down and out. At his sister's request he went to the Stag and saw the fellow and gave him a fiver. That's his story and you bet he means to stick to it! Of course the police are keeping dark about what Beatrice heard."

"David Hunter says he had no previous acquaintance with the man?"

"That's what he says. Anyway, I gather Hunter never met Underhay."

"And what about Rosaleen Clode?"

"The police asked her to look at the body in case she knew the man. She told them that he was a complete stranger to her."

"Eh bien," said Poirot. "Then that answers your question?"

"Does it?" said Rowley bluntly. "I think not. If the dead man is Underhay then Rosaleen was never my uncle's wife and she's not entitled to a penny of his money. Do you think she would recognize him under those circumstances?"

"You don't trust her?"

"I don't trust either of them." "Surely there are plenty of people who could say for certain that the dead man is or is not Underhay?"

"It doesn't seem to be so easy. That's what I want you to do. Find someone who knows Underhay. Apparently he has no living relations in this country—and he was always an unsocial lonely sort of chap. I suppose there must be old servants—friends—someone—but the war's broken up everything and shifted people round. I wouldn't know how to begin to tackle the job—anyway I haven't the time. I'm a farmer—and I'm short-handed."

"Why me?" said Hercule Poirot.

Rowley looked embarrassed.

A faint twinkle came into Poirot's eye.

"Spirit guidance?" he murmured.

"Good Lord, no," said Rowley, horrified. "Matter of fact, he hesitated. 'I heard a fellow I know talk about you—said you were wizard at these sort of things. I don't know about your fees—expensive, I expect—we're rather a stony-broke lot, but I darsay we could cough it up amongst the lot of us. That is, if you'll take it on.'"

Hercule Poirot said slowly:

"Yes, I think perhaps I can help you."

His memory, a very precise and definite memory, went back. The club bore, the rustling newspapers, the monotonous voice.

The name—he had heard the name—it would come back to him presently, if not, he could always ask Melton. . . . No, he had got it. Poirot. Major Porter.

Hercule Poirot rose to his feet. "Will you come back here this afternoon, Mr. Clode?"

"Well—I don't know. Yes, I suppose I could. But surely you can't do anything in that short time?"

He looked at Poirot with awe and incredulity. Poirot would have been less than human if he could have resisted the temptation to show off. With memories of a brilliant predecessor in his mind, he said solemnly:

"I have my methods, Mr. Clode."

It was clearly the right thing to say. Rowley's expression became respectful in the extreme.

"Yes—of course—really—I don't know how you people do these things."

Poirot did not enlighten him. When Rowley had gone, he sat down and wrote a short note. Giving it to George he instructed him to take it to the Coronation Club and wait for an answer.

The answer was highly satisfactory. Major Porter presented his compliments to M. Hercule Poirot and would be happy to see him and his friend at 79 Edgeway St., Campden Hill that afternoon at five o'clock.

At four-thirty Rowley Clode reappeared.

"Any luck, M. Poirot?"

"But yes, Mr. Clode, we go now to see an old friend of Captain Robert Underhay's."

"What?" Rowley's mouth fell open. He stared at Poirot with the amazement a small boy shows when a conjurer produces rabbits out of a hat. "But it's incredible! I don't understand how you can do these things—Why, it's only a few hours."

Poirot waved a deprecating hand and tried to look modest. He had no intention of revealing the simplicity with which his conjuring trick had been done. His vanity was pleased to impress this simple Rowley.

The two men went out together, and hailing a taxi they drove to Campden Hill.

Major Porter had the first floor of a small shabby house. They were admitted by a cheerful blowzy-looking woman who took them up. It was a square room with bookshelves round it and some rather bad sporting prints. There were two rugs on the floor—good rugs with lovely dim color but very worn. Poirot noticed that the center of the floor was covered with a new heavy varnish whereas the varnish round the edge was old and rubbed. He realized then that there had been other better rugs until recently—rugs that were worth good money in these days. He looked up at the man standing erect by the fireplace in his well-cut shabby suit. Poirot guessed that Major Porter, retired Army officer, life was lived very near the bone. Taxation and the increased cost of living struck hardest at the old war horse. Some things, he guessed, Major Porter would cling to until the end. His club subscription, for instance.

Major Porter was speaking jerkily.

"Fraid I don't remember meeting you, M. Poirot. At the club, you say? Couple of years ago? Know your name of course."

"This," said Poirot, "is Mr. Rowley Clode."

Major Porter jerked his head in honor of the introduction.

"How d'ye do?" he said. "Fraid I can't ask you to have a glass of sherry. Matter of fact my wine merchant has lost his stock in the Blitz. Got some gin. Filthy stuff, I always think. Or what about some beer?"

They accepted beer. Major Porter produced a cigarette case. "Smoke?" Poirot accepted a cigarette. The Major struck a match and lighted Poirot's cigarette.

"You don't, I know," said the Major to Rowley. "Mind if I light my pipe?" He did so with a good deal of sucking and blowing.

"Now then," he said when all these preliminaries had been accomplished. "What's all this about?"

He looked from one to the other of them.

Poirot said: "You may have read in the paper of the death of a man at Warmley Vale?"

Porter shook his head.

"May have. Don't think so."

"His name was Arden. Enoch Arden?"

Porter still shook his head.

"He was found at the Stag Inn with the back of his head smashed in."

Porter frowned.

"Let me see—yes, did see something about it, I believe—some days ago."

"Yes, I have here a photograph—it is a Press photograph and not very clear, I'm afraid! What we should like to know, Major Porter, is whether you have ever seen this man before?"

He handed over the best reproduction of the dead man's face he had been able to find.

Major Porter took it and frowned at it.

"Wait a sec." The Major took out his spectacles, adjusted them on his nose and studied the photograph more closely—then he gave a sudden start.

"God bless my soul!" he said. "Well, I'm blasted!"

"You know the man, Major?"

"Of course I know him. It's Underhay—Robert Underhay."

"You're sure of that?" There was triumph in Rowley's voice.

"Of course I'm sure. Robert Underhay! I'd swear to it anywhere."

40 Years Your Dry Cleaner in Circleville

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—The anguished cries are rending the country air. The metallic clinking you hear is the sound of armor being buckled, the noise of swords being honed. For, quite inadvertently—being by nature a peaceful man who long ago put his brass knuckles away on the closet shelf—I have aroused wild and indignant anger in that most sensitive class of citizens, the occupants of remodeled farm houses.

Several weeks ago I recounted a visit I had made to an erstwhile mansion in the country. The visit depressed me, since after six hard months of hauling bricks, patching ceiling leaks and painting, the would-be country gentleman and his wife had hardly made a dent in the chaos before them.

It looked as if three or four more years of hard, back-breaking labor would be required before things would begin looking presentable, and I closed my little account by noting my relief at leaving the scene and heading south for the grime and noise and urban comfort of my beloved city.

What was intended to be a reportorial impression turned out to be an unintentional needle. Mail began coming in, and acquaintances who actually lived in remodeled farmhouses began stopping me on the street.

"Why," they would say, "how can you criticize such projects on the strength of one quick, night-time look?"

The most literate spokesman for the defense turned out to be a woman. She is Mrs. Sylvia Reynolds, of Titusville, Pa., who has remodeled a house along Route 1 into what she insists is a close version of heaven on earth. Mrs. Reynolds wrote that it took three years to develop this idyllic manse into what she describes as a haven of peace and comfort.

THE DRIVE IS GRAVELED (no, no; the drive is graveled) and lighted at night by a floodlamp," Mrs. Reynolds reported. "No ruts now. Neat stone steps lead down from a smooth expanse of lawn to the brook, where I can catch trout quite often when I get the urge to go fishing. And I can swim in really clear water—as is!

"The old house is now a home," continues Mrs. R., "all conveniences, all electric, and view in all four directions. The new porch (there goes that PORCH again; what's so appealing about a porch?)—MH.) faces the creek.

"Fresh vegetables are in my garden—peas off the vines, corn right from the stalk, berries dewy and sweet. And my lovely, lovely flowers!"

"At LAST we see the stars, the moon, sunrises and sunsets, storms brewing, heat waves rising from the fields, snow—miles of it, not in muddy pools, but white—the rippling stream and the raging, roaring, boiling flood, the mists of morning."

"I am trying hard not to be smart-alecky, Mrs. Reynolds, I really am, but when you come out and tell me you can hear the stillness of night and the soft whisper of falling snow, as you do, I do believe you are stretching things a point—MH.)

"Birds singing for joy or shrieking in fright; the scuttling rabbits; the wild bark of our spaniel on the trail, thunder echoing from hill to hill and down the valley."

"SEE THE DEER, STARING WHEN SURPRISED on a woods path, their wild flight," continues the nature-loving Sylvia, "the smell of the pines and hemlock after a rain, and the poignant odor of newly-cut hay (an, I KNEW she was going to get newly-cut hay in there, somewhere; if she didn't, she probably would be expelled from the Walden-Walt Whitman school of writers—MH.)

"Picnics, friends, outdoor meals in the shade of the maples; the laughter of children swimming and playing—in safety. The deep mysteries of nature all about, reminding us of Infinity and the beauty of the world we live in."

"Yes, I'll have a soda from the refrigerator—in my cool, comfortable, quiet living room. I can't hear the racket at the neighbors'. They live a quarter of a mile away. Guess I'll call them up and invite them over for a swim and a wienie roast."

Mrs. Reynolds presents a picturesque and tantalizing portrait of life in a George Washington-slept-here mansion, and I think the next time I am down along Route One I will drop in for a moment to see if I can hear a little of that stillness of night, and to throw a stone or two at that spaniel yapping out on the trail.

I have no rebuttal to her that would carry any weight, because she and I represent opposite colors in the spectrum—or do I mean prism?

To Mrs. R., the joys of the rustic scheme of things are beyond compare. To me, the ominous roar of a subway train slamming its clamorous way into the Times Square station has the same fascination.

I think that before she huris it at me, I will say to her that Route One must be a nice place to visit, but I don't think I'd like to live there.

Excruciating Pain

Without warning, its victim is seized with an excruciating pain in the joint of the large toe. Other joints may be involved, but this is the usual site of the torture. The skin around the inflamed and throbbing joint soon becomes a dusky red, while fever and rapid heart beat give evidence that the entire body is affected.

Even if untreated, the attack usually clears up for the time being in from three to seven days. The skin over the involved joint may peel.

Persons with an attack of gout respond quickly to a drug known as colchicine. In fact, if there is some question about the diagnosis and the symptoms clear up with the administration of this drug, it means, in practically all cases, that the trouble is due to gout.

After Attack

After an attack clears up, the patient has no reaction from the condition except, perhaps, an increase of the amount of uric acid in the blood.

Attacks usually occur once a year. However, as they recur, there is a tendency for the attacks to last longer and the interval between the attacks to become shorter.

About ten to twenty years after the first attack of gout, a chronic condition may develop, due to damage to the joint. Deposits of what are known as urates occur along tendons which connect the muscles to the bones, and around the joints. The patient is apt to have continued symptoms.

In most instances, attacks of gout are not brought on by eating or drinking excessively. However, injuries, excessive exercise, and infection do seem to bring on the attacks.

Certain drugs, such as liver extracts, mercaptans and ergotamine tartrate also seem to provoke gouty attacks.

In making a diagnosis of the condition, the amount of uric acid in the blood should be determined, since in gout the quantity of uric acid in the blood is greater than normal.

In Early Stages

X-ray examination is not of great value in diagnosing the condition in the early stages. When the disorder becomes chronic, however, X-ray examination is quite helpful in the diagnosis.

Treatment consists of the use of colchicine, as I have mentioned, and the pain-relieving preparations if they are necessary. The elimination of foods rich in purines, such as liver, kidney, pancreas, anchovies, sardines, and brains, is important. The patient should drink plenty of fluids. Exercise of the involved joints is of value. Aspirin and baking soda taken three days of each week are also helpful in preventing attacks.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

ROWLEY went on talking to Poirot.

"David Hunter (that's Rosaleen Clode's brother) had called to see him the evening after he arrived. His story to the police is that he'd had a letter from the chap saying he had been a friend of Robert Underhay's and was down and out. At his sister's request he went to the Stag and saw the fellow and gave him a fiver. That's his story and you bet he means to stick to it! Of course the police are keeping dark about what Beatrice heard."

"David Hunter says he had no previous acquaintance with the man?"

"That's what he says. Anyway, I gather Hunter never met Underhay."

"And what about Rosaleen Clode?"

"The police asked her to look at the body in case she knew the man. She told them that he was a complete stranger to her."

"Eh bien," said Poirot. "Then that answers your question?"

"Does it?" said Rowley bluntly. "I think not. If the dead man is Underhay then Rosaleen was never my uncle's wife and she's not entitled to a penny of his money. Do you think she would recognize him under those circumstances?"

"You don't trust her?"

"I don't trust either of them."

"Surely there are plenty of people who could say for certain that the dead man is or is not Underhay?"

"It doesn't seem to be so easy. That's what I want you to do. Find someone who knows Underhay. Apparently he has no living relations in this country—and he was always an unsocial, lonely sort of chap. I suppose there must be old servants—friends—someone—but the war's broken up everything and shifted people round. I wouldn't know how to begin to tackle the job—anyway I haven't the time. I'm a farmer—and I'm short-handed."

"Why me?" said Hercule Poirot.

Rowley looked embarrassed.

A faint twinkle came into Poirot's eye.

"Spirit guidance?" he murmured.

"Good Lord, no," said Rowley, horrified. "Matter of fact, he hesitated. 'I heard a fellow I know talk about you—said you were wizard at these sort of things. I don't know about your fees—expensive, I expect—we're rather a stonybroke lot, but I darsay we could cough it up amongst the lot of us. That is, if you'll take it on.'"

Hercule Poirot said slowly:

"Yes, I think perhaps I can help you."

His memory, a very precise and definite memory, went back. The club bore, the rustling newspapers, the monotonous voice.

The name—he had heard the name—it would come back to him presently. If not, he could always ask Mellon. . . . No, he had got it. Poirot. Major Porter.

Hercule Poirot rose to his feet.

"Will you come back here this afternoon, Mr. Clode?"

"Well—I don't know. Yes, I suppose I could. But surely you can't do anything in that short time?"

He looked at Poirot with awe and incredulity. Poirot would have been less than human if he could have resisted the temptation to show off. With memories of a brilliant predecessor in his mind, he said solemnly:

"I have my methods, Mr. Clode."

It was clearly the right thing to say. Rowley's expression became respectful in the extreme.

"Yes—of course—really—I don't know how you people do these things."

Poirot did not enlighten him.

When Rowley had gone, he sat down and wrote a short note. Giving it to George he instructed him to take it to the Coronation Club and wait for an answer.

The answer was highly satisfactory. Major Porter presented his compliments to M. Hercule Poirot and would be happy to see him and his friend at 79 Edgeway St., Campden Hill that afternoon at five o'clock.

At four-thirty Rowley Clode reappeared.

"Any luck, M. Poirot?"

"But yes, Mr. Clode, we go now to see an old friend of Captain Robert Underhay's."

"What?" Rowley's mouth fell open. He stared at Poirot with the amazement a small boy shows when a conjurer produces rabbits out of a hat. "But it's incredible! I don't understand how you can do these things—Why, it's only a few hours."

Poirot waved a deprecating hand and tried to look modest. He had no intention of revealing the simplicity with which his conjuring trick had been done. His vanity was pleased to impress this simple Rowley.

The two men went out together, and hailing a taxi they drove to Campden Hill.

Major Porter had the first floor of a small shabby house. They were admitted by a cheerful blowy-looking woman who took them up. It was a square room with bookshelves round it and some rather bad sporting prints. There were two rugs on the floor—good rugs with lovely dim color but very worn. Poirot noticed that the center of the floor was covered with a new heavy varnish whereas the varnish round the edge was old and rubbed. He realized then that there had been other better rugs until recently—rugs that were worth good money in these days. He looked up at the man standing erect by the fireplace in his well-cut shabby suit. Poirot guessed that for Major Porter, retired Army officer, life was lived very near the bone. Taxation and the increased cost of living struck hardest at the old war horses. Some things, he guessed, Major Porter would cling to until the end. His club subscription, for instance.

Major Porter was speaking jerkily.

"Fraid I don't remember meeting you, M. Poirot. At the club, you say? Couple of years ago? Know your name of course."

"This," said Poirot, "is Mr. Rowley Clode."

Major Porter jerked his head in honor of the introduction.

"How d'ye do?" he said. "Fraid I can't ask you to have a glass of sherry. Matter of fact my wine merchant has lost his stock in the Blitz. Got some gin. Filthy stuff. I always think. Or what about some beer?"

They accepted beer. Major Porter produced a cigarette case.

"Smoke?" Poirot accepted a cigarette. The Major struck a match and lighted Poirot's cigarette.

"You don't, I know," said the Major to Rowley. "Mind if I light my pipe?" He did so with a good deal of sucking and blowing.

"Now then," he said when all these preliminaries had been accomplished. "What's all this about?"

He looked from one to the other of them.

Poirot said: "You may have read in the paper of the death of a man at Warmley Vale?"

Porter shook his head.

"May have. Don't think so."

"His name was Arden. Enoch Arden?"

Porter still shook his head.

"He was found at the Stag Inn with the back of his head smashed in."

Porter frowned.

"Let me see—yes, did see something about it, I believe—some days ago."

"Yes. I have here a photograph—It is a Press photograph and not very clear, I'm afraid! What we should like to know, Major Porter, is whether you have ever seen this man before?"

He handed over the best reproduction of the dead man's face he had been able to find.

Major Porter took it and frowned at it.

"Wait a sec." The Major took out his spectacles, adjusted them on his nose and studied the photograph more closely—then he gave a sudden start.

"God bless my soul!" he said. "Well, I'm blasted!"

"You know the man, Major?"

"Of course I know him. It's Underhay—Robert Underhay."

"You're sure of that?" There was triumph in Rowley's voice.

"Of course I'm sure. Robert Underhay! I'd swear to it anywhere."

Music for the program was presented by the Owl Creek Ramblers of Chillicothe.

Next Roll reunion has been scheduled for the fourth Sunday in August next year.

Dinner Marks Two Birthdays

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Shasteen of the Ashville community were honored Sunday with a party, arranged in celebration of both of their birthday anniversaries.

Dinner was served in the diningroom where a color scheme of blue and pink predominated the appointments. A decorated cake topped by burning candles

OREGON will be represented in the annual Atlantic City "Miss America" contest by 18-year-old Joyce Davis of Redmond, a brunette who hopes to win a college scholarship so that she can study music. (International) and a bouquet of salvia graced the table.

Guests at the affair were Major McCollister, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Lovensheimer and Boyd Rife Dum of Orient, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Carter of the Williamsport community, and Mrs. Francis Fite of Columbus.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. John Huston of near Mt. Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Timmons of Columbus were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brown of near Stoutsville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tomlinson of Circleville Route 3 and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wilcox attended the annual picnic of the Amateur Radio Club of Columbus at Maple Shade, near Columbus, Sunday. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wilcox of Columbus, daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Spangler and children Milton and Nancy, along with Mrs. Walter Gilmore and son Michael and Mrs. Don Gilmore travelled to Camp Atterbury, Ind., Sunday to visit with Walter and Donald Gilmore and Jerry Spangler, who are attending the Ohio National Guard training course at the camp.

Miss Sally V. May of Stanford, Conn., is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy May of Circleville Route 2.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Valentine of Washington Township and Mrs. M. S. Rinehart of South

Scioto street have returned from a two-week motor trip in the West. Their trip included stops at Estes and Rock Mountain parks, Salt Lake City, the Teton Mountains, Yellowstone Park, Black Hills and the Bad Lands.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bower, Mr. and Mrs. James Stout and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bower of Circleville are on a vacation to the northern part of Canada.

Mrs. Emmett Crist accompanied by the Misses Nancy Bowers and Anne Penick of Circleville and Joan Lilly of Detroit are vacationing in New York City. Miss Renick will spend some time as the house guest of Miss Cynthia Richmond of Greens Farms, Conn., who was her roommate at Western College for Women, Oxford.

Canning Peaches?

Famous FREE book tells success secret! SIMPLE TESTED PROVEN

It's FREE... and it's a wonderful help in canning and freezing of fruits... the 1948 edition of "Finner Canned & Frozen Fruits," 32 pages, with easy-to-follow charts and step-by-step directions. Recipes for pickles, preserves and jellies, too!

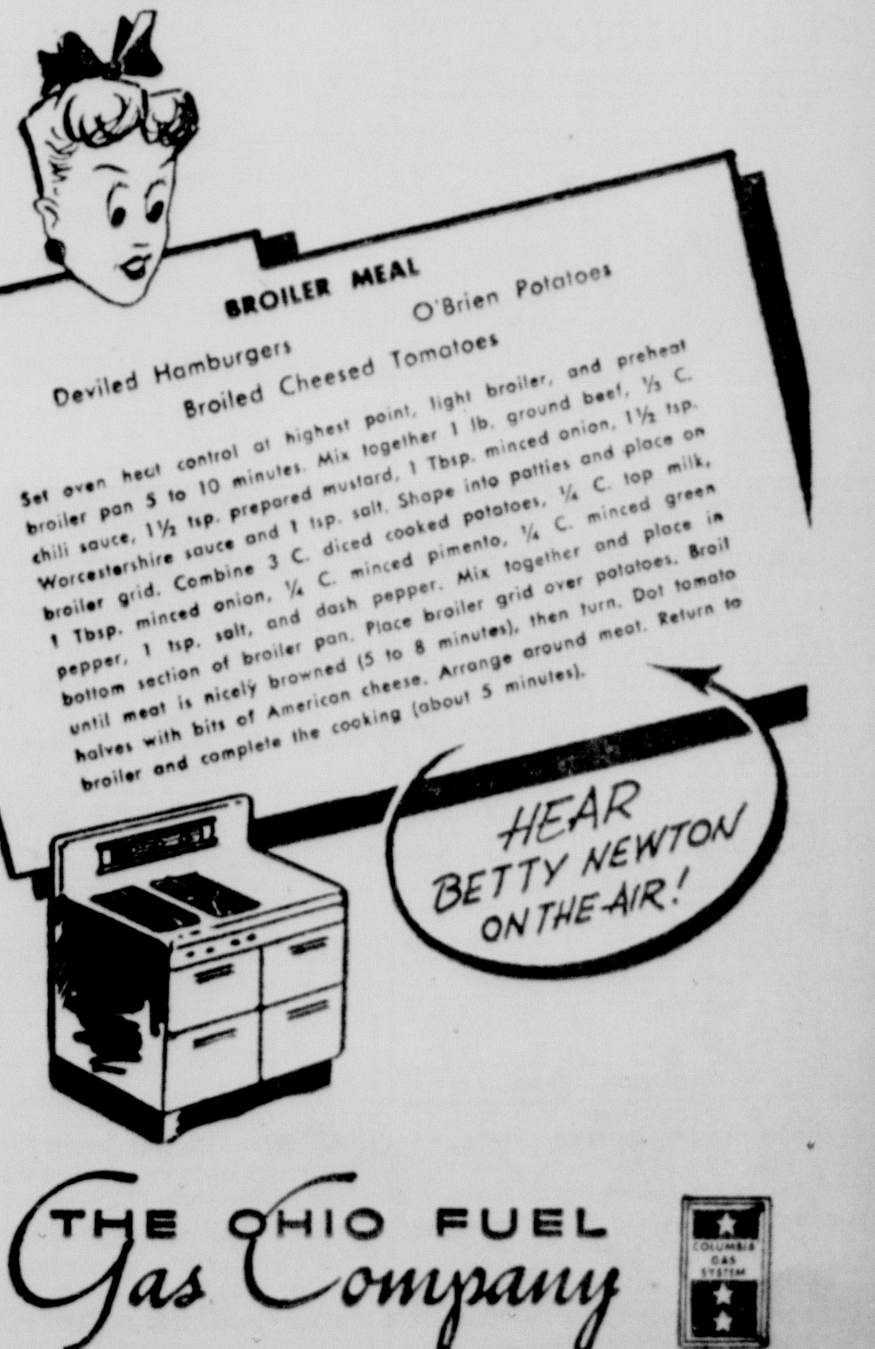

Better results? Yes, finer flavor, color and texture; just by a simple change in your canning and freezing syrups. Tried and proved by thousands of women.

A wonderful book... and it's yours FREE.

Sounds like a riddle, doesn't it? What we mean is this—you can prepare complete broiler meals with an automatic gas range and still keep cool! High quality gas ranges keep the heat inside—oven door is closed during broiling—and the method is quick! Try this tempting broiler meal and if you don't own a modern gas range, see them at The Gas Company or other dealers, and soon!

Boyers '9' Nips Tinks In Tourney

Boys Oust Mumaw Outfit

Boys softball team lambasted Tinks 10-2 Monday night to walk away with the winner's bracket championship of the Circleville Night Softball League tournament.

Although the Boyer aggregation has gone thus far undefeated in tournament competition, it must play again Monday, when it will meet the winner of the loser's bracket for the tourney title.

Mumaws was booted from tourney competition in the preliminary to the Boyer-Tink tilt when Boys delivered a 14-2 trouncing in five innings.

In the title tilt, Boys posted the first score of the game on a double, two errors and a single.

The score changed in the last of the first inning, however, when Tinks scored two on a homerun by Sammy Schleich with one aboard. Both teams went scoreless in the second inning, and Boys tied the ball game in the third with a single marker.

THE REST of the game went to the Boyer crew, which scored three tallies in each of the fifth and sixth innings and a pair in the seventh while holding Tinks scoreless.

Fred Immelt wielded the most powerful bat in the encounter, rapping two doubles in two times at the platter.

In the Boyd-Mumaw fracas, Mumaws was the first to score, posting a single in the first frame on a single, a walk and a passed ball. The Mumaw aggregation held its slim lead in the remainder of the first stanza, but was tied in the second frame when Boys scored a single on three walks, two wild pitches, an error and a passed ball.

From the second inning on it was Boys game, the high schoolers posting two runs in the second inning and 11 in the third while holding Mumaws to a single, scored in the fourth.

Paul Smallwood poled the longest hit of the game, a smash into leftfield good for a round trip.

Tuesday's tourney schedule calls for Millions to play Boys at 7:15 p. m., followed by a tilt between Isals and Lockbourne. Both games are for loser's bracket positions.

Only one game is carded for Wednesday, an encounter between the winner of the Lockbourne-Isals game to meet Walnut at 8:15 p. m.

Following are the box scores on Monday's tourney tilts:

Trotter Clips Off Fast Mile, But Slips, Loses Feature Race

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 24—The fastest mile of the opening program of Grand Circuit racing at the Wisconsin Centennial Exposition here meant nothing today to Sylvester Corsi's Terangi.

The Jurley, Wis., trotter won the first heat of the $1,500 invitational trot yesterday in 2:03.4/5 but slipped to ninth in the second as Burt Hanover, owned and driven by Amos Le Claire, captured first-prize money in 2:06.4/5.

The veteran Doc Marshall piloted McElwyn Hanover, owned by Hayes Fair Acres of Duquoin, Ill., to victory in the 2:18 trot by winning the second heat after finishing third in the first.

The only straight heat triumph on the four-race program was scored by Easter Grattan in the 2:18 pace. Owner-Driver Dr. F. B. Maher of Eau Claire, Wis., upset all pre-race dope by bringing his sidewheeler through to the wire on top.

Fred Hanover, owned by Resnick Cleaners of Washington, Pa., and guided by Frank Ervin, won the 2:22 trot with a first and a second.

In Westbury, N. Y., Baily Hanover copped the one mile Auburn Classified Trot at Roosevelt Raceway last night.

Chief Song crossed the finish line in second spot and Prudence Hanover came in third.

In Lexington, Ky., Demon Hanover, winner of harness racing's plus $60,000 Hambletonian, has been entered in the Arden Homestead Stakes Sept. 29.

The bay colt who took the trotting "Kentucky Derby" at Goshen, N. Y., is expected to be taken to the post by Owner-Driver Harrison Hoyt.

Hoyt, the first amateur driver ever to win the Hambletonian, will try to get his trotter to do 2:00 or better during the Lexington meet.

40 Youths Turn Out For Grid

Another 20 Due By End Of Week

About 40 aspirants to starting berths on the 1948 Circleville high school football team turned out for the season's first practice session Monday afternoon.

Nearly 10 of last year's starters were absent from the first session, Summer employment keeping them away.

However, Coaches Steve Bruzdinski and Tommy Bennett predicted there would be nearly 60 lads out for practice by the end of this week.

The coaches seemed well pleased with the spirit of the youngsters who did show up for the session, although Circleville will again this year have one of the lightest teams in the South Central Ohio League competition.

After reporting for practice gear, the lads were put through a series of calisthenics and roadwork conditions to melt away excess Summer fat. Pads probably will not be used until the end of the second week.

The rest of this week is to be devoted to conditioning and "slow motion" plays. Also on this week's calendar will be basic blocking sessions, along with passing and punting practices.

Kansas City Blue Tagged Top AA Rookie Of Year

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—Albert (Flip) Rosen, Cleveland Indian chatter who has been sparkling at third base for the Kansas City Blues, is the American Association's most outstanding rookie.

The 23-year-old native of Miami, Fla., was selected over 38 other eligible freshmen by the American Association chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Rosen, on 24-hour option from the Indians, is wonderful insurance against the day when Ken Keltner ceases to bash home runs and make sparking pickups for Cleveland.

Playing with a hopeless second division club, Rosen has stood out at Kansas City all season. He is a leading contender for both the league batting championship and the homerun leadership.

The 5' 11", 175-pound youth came up from Oklahoma City in the Texas League tagged as having "absolutely no batting weaknesses."

He has hit over the .300 mark in each of his previous three seasons. He belted .306 for Thomasville in the North Carolina State League in 1942.

ONLY 4 of a second difference is noted in the 60-yard low hurdles event, with Tommy Phillips holding the edge with 8.5 seconds, trailed by Valentine, who posted an 8.9 seconds time.

Valentine, Bob Armour, Dwight Radcliff and Phillips have run the 240 yard shuttle relay in 36 seconds. Jerry Pritchard is the alternate to the relay team.

The youngsters are to be given a sendoff Thursday night on the eve of their departure to the National Junior Olympiad by the Circleville Booster Club in Memorial Hall. The Booster sendoff is slated for 7:45 p. m.

The local team is to depart for Cleveland in the early forenoon Friday, and is to arrive at the Baldwin and Wallace Campus in time for warmup practices during the afternoon.

The National Junior Olympics meet is to be held in the college stadium all day Saturday.

John Heiskell, in charge of transportation for the trip, said the lads would travel to the meet in privately-owned autos. Heiskell said he still needed a car or two to provide transportation, and asked anyone interested to contact him.

Isalsy Grabbs Sabina Victory

Isalsy softball team kept its head above water in the Sabina Softball tournament Monday night by defeating the Waynesville American Legion, 8-1.

Junior Clark hit the longest ball of the game, a ball with "homerun" written all over it, but it was no good—he failed to touch first base. Other long hits were accredited Ansel Roof and Bob Steele, who rapped three-basers.

Isalsy is to play again at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Cerdan Is Due To Arrive Today

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Marcel Cerdan, challenger for the world's middleweight championship in a Sept. 21 match with Tony Zale, was due to arrive at Idlewild airport from Paris today.

Cerdan and Zale were expected to sign contracts tomorrow for the title match, scheduled for Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City.

Lads Shave Times In Practices

County Youths Set For Big Olympics

Prospects of placing Pickaway County youngsters high in the events at the National Junior Olympics meet in Cleveland brightened Tuesday when the local coach, Paul (Snow) Seymour, revealed practice times for various events.

Seymour has been coaching the youngsters since the county Olympiad, prepping them for the big contest on the Baldwin and Wallace campus next Friday and Saturday.

According to Seymour, seconds have been shaved from the qualifying times posted by the youthful Olympians in their eliminations, and inches added to field events such as high jump, broad jump, etc.

In the 60-yard dash, Jerry Rooney has posted a time of 7.9 seconds, trailed by his alternate Bob Turner, who was clocked at 8.1 seconds.

ROONEY also holds tops in the ball throwing event, tossing the 12-inch ball a total of 207 feet. Turner, again his alternate in the ball throw, was second.

In the 240-yard relay, Jim George, Dick Hoffman, Turner and Rooney teamed up to post a time of 34 seconds. Ralph Sampill is the alternate in the event.

Ronnie Wilson remained tops in the 12-13-year-old running broadjump, posting a distance of 14' 2". Mike Rooney is second with 12' 8".

Dave Coffland, only entrant in the high jump, soared over the bar at 4' 8", nearly two inches better than his qualifying jump.

Cooke Metzger holds top rating in the 75 yard dash in the 15-17-year-old bracket, romping off the distance in 8.7 seconds. Jim Brigner, his alternate, posted nine seconds flat.

Lowell Thomas, Jim Starkey, Brigner and Metzger teamed together in the half-mile relay to span the distance in one min., 52 sec. Cecil Sowers is alternate on the relay team.

Starkey holds top post in the eight-pound shot put, throwing the lead ball 43 feet. Sowers and John Valentine both trail in second spot with 40 feet each.

Metzger has posted a 17' 8.5" broad jump to keep ahead of competition. He is trailed by Ted Raymond, who marked at 15'.

Wilson Martin holds the older bracket high jump starting post with a jump of 4' 10", trailed by his alternate, Brigner, who clears the bar at 4' 7".

ONLY 4 of a second difference is noted in the 60-yard low hurdles event, with Tommy Phillips holding the edge with 8.5 seconds, trailed by Valentine, who posted an 8.9 seconds time.

Valentine, Bob Armour, Dwight Radcliff and Phillips have run the 240 yard shuttle relay in 36 seconds. Jerry Pritchard is the alternate to the relay team.

Evangelical Pastoral Appointments Are Announced

No Changes Made Near Circleville

Rev. Mr. Herbst Returned Here

Several changes were made in pastoral appointments in the Ohio Evangelical United Brethren conference (formerly the Ohio Evangelical conference), church officials announced Tuesday.

Announcements were made at the close of the conference held in Lancaster Maple Street church.

Most changes were made in the southern sector of the conference, but none in the immediate vicinity of Circleville.

The Rev. James A. Herbst was returned for another year to the Calvary church, Circleville.

Others who were re-assigned in this area were the Rev. H. Glenn Crabtree to Stoutsville; the Rev. Earl W. Leist, to the Cedar Hill church and the Rev. C. H. Kern to Lancaster Maple Street church.

The Rev. Ross Carothers, formerly of Circleville, was returned to his church in Wellsville. The Rev. J. Paul Jones Jr. was assigned to the Columbus East Eighth Avenue Church where a vacancy had been created by the moving of the former pastor to the Oregon conference.

AT THIS conference session the quadrennial election was held for conference superintendents. The Rev. E. E. Nietz of Columbus, who has served for the past eight years as superintendent of the southern district, was re-elected to that position.

The Rev. M. A. Hayes was elected to take the place of Dr. C. L. Allen in the eastern district of Ohio. The Rev. F. A. Firestone was re-elected as superintendent of the western district.

Ivan Grant Carothers, of East Union Street, Circleville, who is a ministerial student in Ashland college received his license in this conference session.

This conference session is not to be confused with the South-eastern Ohio session which is this week being held in Columbus. Even though the former Evangelical Church and the former United Brethren Church have united in name and on a general level, the state conferences in this area have not yet organically united.

AT THE conference session this past week, which was the conference which formerly was the Evangelical Ohio conference, time was given to the discussion of the basis upon which this could be done, and five commissioners were elected to sit with similar representatives of the other EUB conferences of Ohio, to discuss a suitable basis for readjustment of the conferences.

The final session, which ended a four-day period, was in the form of a missionary service at which the Rev. Walter Schutz, superintendent of the EUB Mission at Sierra Leone, West Africa, brought the address.

Following the address the chairman, Bishop George Edward Epp called the conference to order

Woman Candidate Pushes Campaign

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—Mrs. Agnes Walters, self-styled "only woman candidate for President of the United States," happily distributed her campaign literature around Columbus today.

The woman who said she was a Washington D. C. real estate broker, asked police permission to spread her independent campaign propaganda last night and delivered an impromptu oration to the desk sergeant.

She called President Truman a "rubber stamp from Moscow" and said Communists were relatively safe in this country because "Washington is inundated with Reds."

The desk sergeant told her to go peddle her pamphlets—as soon as he could get his word in edgewise.

Shortage Found Against Clerk

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—A shortage of $15,910 in the accounts of Miss Ethel Martin, former clerk at the Ohio agricultural experiment station at Wooster, was reported by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today.

Ferguson made a finding for recovery of that amount from Miss Martin in favor of the station in a report covering the period from May 1, 1940, to Feb. 28, 1948.

The auditor said Miss Martin, who retired last Sept. 1, handled all cash sales made by the station and failed to record various sales slips or deposits paid on such sales.

Guppy-like fish known as Mollienesia formosa, were reported in 1947 to have only one sex—female.

7 New Members Are Added To Kiwanis Rolls

Circleville Kiwanis Club Monday evening added seven new members to its rolls in special induction ceremonies.

Handled by Charles Baker, Portsmouth Kiwanian and executive of the Shelby Shoe Co., the ceremony detailed the objectives and aims of the dinner club. Baker gave a lengthy discussion of Kiwanis history and beliefs prior to the induction.

The seven new members are Bertus Bennett, Harry Barton, William Thornton, William Ammer, A. W. Graef, Gene Barthelmas and Thurman Eberly.

Immediately prior to the ceremony, club singing was led by Eberly, newly-appointed music director for Circleville high school. In addition, the club heard musical numbers by youthful Johnny Baker, son of Charles Baker who headed the induction program.

Taxes Levied In 3 Estates

A determination of inheritance tax on the estate of Lena M. Parks of one of three set down by Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court.

Assessment was fixed at $1,025.73 to be paid by six successors to the estate. Court records show none of the heirs were relatives.

From a distribution of $10,817.33 of the Pauline Brown estate, a total of $264.19 was set as inheritance tax to be paid by 21 succeeding heirs to the estate.

Inheritance tax on the Mary E. Malone estate was fixed at $219.16. This was for a distribution left to a brother, Patrick Malone, court records reveal.

Here Is Son Unlike Father

DOVER, Aug. 24—A 27-year-old Dover man told Mayor Harry Stucky how he borrowed a car, got drunk, lost control of the car on a curve, tore out 50 feet of guard rail and shot the car over a four-foot retaining wall.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. The car caught fire and was destroyed. Mayor Stucky fined the man $100 and costs. The man was the mayor's son, George.

Accounts Filed In Court Here

Two final accounts have been filed for the approval of Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court. On the estate of Ellen W. Rodocker credits and charges were equal at $15,407.21. Mamie E. Rodocker was the administratrix.

Final accounting on the estate of Joseph Bennett shows credits and disbursements equal at $28,710.69. The papers were filed by Harry V. Heath and John T. Dick, co-administrators.

Last Swim Day Yields Tragedy

SIDNEY, Aug. 24—The last day of supervised swimming at the Sidney city pool, was the first day for a swimming tragedy here.

Eleven-year-old William Harp drowned among crowds of other Sidney youngsters, all of whom were admitted free yesterday. His was the first Shelby County drowning in 1948.

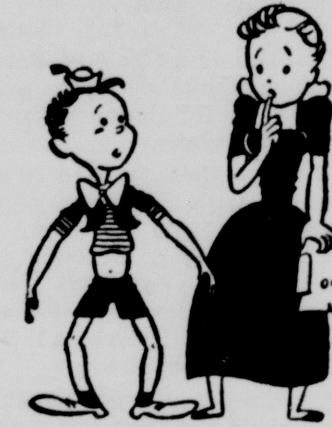

No VA Unit Is Wanted

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24—Suburban Cleveland Heights' council voted 4 to 2 last night to notify Veterans Administration Carl R. Gray Jr. that "once and for all the Eells site, as far as this body is concerned, is out."

Mayor William C. Dunlap also was authorized to tell the Veterans Administration that any attempt to place an institution in the center of "any other single-family residential neighborhood will meet the same reception."

When notified of the council's action, Gray said at New Haven, Conn., that he would withhold comment until he received Dunlap's letter. He added that if a suitable site could not be found for VA to work with Western Reserve university's school of medicine, "VA will have to look elsewhere."

In Buenos Aires and other Argentine cities the walls of many residences are covered with multi-colored tiles.

Sad But True...

The values of most properties have outgrown the amount of insurance carried on them. Better check up—it would take a lot of money to rebuild.

Evangelical Pastoral Appointments Are Announced

No Changes Made Near Circleville

Rev. Mr. Herbst Returned Here

Several changes were made in pastoral appointments in the Ohio Evangelical United Brethren conference (formerly the Ohio Evangelical conference), church officials announced Tuesday.

Announcements were made at the close of the conference held in Lancaster Maple Street church.

Most changes were made in the southern sector of the conference, but none in the immediate vicinity of Circleville.

The Rev. James A. Herbst was returned for another year to the Calvary church, Circleville.

Others who were reassigned in this area were the Rev. H. Glenn Crabtree to Stoutsville; the Rev. Earl W. Leist, to the Cedar Hill church and the Rev. C. H. Kern to Lancaster Maple Street church.

The Rev. Ross Carothers, formerly of Circleville, was returned to his church in Wellsville. The Rev. J. Paul Jones Jr. was assigned to the Columbus East Eighth Avenue Church where a vacancy had been created by the moving of the former pastor to the Oregon conference.

AT THIS conference session the quadrennial election was held for conference superintendents. The Rev. E. E. Nietz of Columbus, who has served for the past eight years as superintendent of the southern district, was reelected to that position.

The Rev. M. A. Hayes was elected to take the place of Dr. C. L. Allen in the eastern district of Ohio. The Rev. F. A. Firestone was reelected as superintendent of the western district.

Ivan Grant Carothers, of East Union Street, Circleville, who is a ministerial student in Ashland college received his license in this conference session.

This conference session is not to be confused with the South-eastern Ohio session which is this week being held in Columbus. Even though the former Evangelical Church and the former United Brethren Church have united in name and on a general level, the state conferences in this area have not yet organically united.

AT THE conference session this past week, which was the conference which formerly was the Evangelical Ohio conference, time was given to the discussion of the basis upon which this could be done, and five commissioners were elected to sit with similar representatives of the other EUB conferences of Ohio, to discuss a suitable basis for readjustment of the conferences.

The final session, which ended a four-day period, was in the form of a missionary service at which the Rev. Walter Schutz, superintendent of the EUB Mission at Sierra Leone, West Africa, brought the address.

Following the address the chairman, Bishop George Edward Epp called the conference to order

Woman Candidate Pushes Campaign

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—Mrs. Agnes Walters, self-styled "only woman candidate for President of the United States," happily distributed her campaign literature around Columbus today.

The woman who said she was a Washington D. C. real estate broker, asked police permission to spread her independent campaign propaganda last night and delivered an impromptu oration to the desk sergeant.

She called President Truman a "rubber stamp from Moscow" and said Communists were relatively safe in this country because "Washington is inundated with Reds."

The desk sergeant told her to go peddle her pamphlets as soon as he could get his word in edgewise.

Shortage Found Against Clerk

COLUMBUS, Aug. 24—A shortage of $13,910 in the accounts of Miss Ethel Martin, former clerk at the Ohio agricultural experiment station at Wooster, was reported by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today.

Ferguson made a finding for recovery of that amount from Miss Martin in favor of the station in a report covering the period from May 1, 1940, to Feb. 28, 1948.

The auditor said Miss Martin, who retired last Sept. 1, handled all cash sales made by the station and failed to record various sales slips or deposits paid on such sales.

Guppy-like fish known as Mollenesia formosa, were reported in 1947 to have only one sex—female.

7 New Members Are Added To Kiwanis Rolls

Circleville Kiwanis Club Monday evening added seven new members to its rolls in special induction ceremonies.

Handled by Charles Baker, Portsmouth Kiwanian and executive of the Shelby Shoe Co., the ceremony detailed the objectives and aims of the dinner club. Baker gave a lengthy discussion of Kiwanis history and beliefs prior to the induction.

The seven new members are Bertus Bennett, Harry Barton, William Thornton, William Ammer, A. W. Graef, Gene Barthelmas and Thurman Eberly.
